Germany's Peace Proposal

At the time of writing this, the country has been thrilled with what a first looked like a genuine peace move. The German emperor has issued a proclamation to his army and navy saying that he is now open to accept an "honorable peace" with his enemies.

This move has been expected by many people in view of the recent successes of the Allies. The collapse of the Bulgarian army no doubt was a big factor in bringing forth this new peace offensive.

The unanimous opinion of leading American and old country papers is that the new peace move is absolutely unacceptable, and is only a move on the part of the Emperor to save his prestige and his throne in Germany.

The "honorable peace" of German manufacture will never be accepted by the allies. It is a case of the wails of a beaten dog. It is safe to say that never until the Germans lay down their arms in unconditional surrender will there be any faith given to peace moves.

The Germans are beaten, and the higher command knows it. The armistice asked for it but to delude the people and still uphold the Kaiser as a hero among his own.

With the Bulgarian army out of business, the collapse of Austria and Turkey looked for at any moment, and the armies of the Kaiser in retreat from the sea to the border of Switzerland, we are on the road to the successful termination of the aims of the allies. The militaristic spirit of the Germans must be crushed, and the idea of world domination by force of arms so strongly put down that never again will any nation try to rise up and turn the world into a vast battlefield.

The beginning of the end is here, and the end will come—but as we want it, and the only answer to the German peace proposals will be greater effort on our part, and a new determination to drive the detestable Hun back to his lair, and the avenge the terrible wrongs that have been inflicted on the helpless countries that have been used as buffers between the opposing armies.

The New York Herald says:

The hit dog yelps. From Berlin and Vienna come simultaneous peace wails with the exhausted. The emperor feels "me too." What Prince Maximilian asks and all that he asks is "Peace by negotiations." What he asks is an armistice. It is the same old trap. There will be no armistice. There will be no negotiations until Germany produces a peace with unconditional surrender. We have just begun to fight.

This sentiment is expressed in leading papers all over the United States, and every citizen of Canada looks for the time when Germany's proffer to a peace move will be "unconditional surrender."

Are We Thankful?

Next Monday has been made a public holiday for the celebration of Thanksgiving Day. This day is set by the government each year for the purpose of public celebration or acknowledgement of the providence of God as shown in his deliverance from calamities and our thankfulness for His goodness and protection.

This year we have much to be thankful for. Our hearts rejoice in the fact that we have been secure from all the ravages of war and suffering that has been the lot of untold millions of people in other lands. We can be doubly thankful for the cheering news that comes from the battlefields of Europe of the success of our armies and that with continued success we may soon look for peace again in the world.

Let every person who feels that he has something to be thankful for attend the divine services at any of the churches and worship in the spirit and manner that was intended when the day was first inaugurated.

Indian Summer

These are the days which to some are the finest of the year. To the artist, a trip through the country where there are trees, furnishes many a setting for the finest of pictures, if the beautiful colors that the landscape presents now, could be depicted on canvas.

The leaves of the trees now present a wonderful picture in their varying shades from yellow or golden to deep red. A view from the top of a hill to the valley below with its variegated colors presents a scene that can never be painted by man.

So far we have not heard of any aspirants to civic honors in the coming civic elections. Nomination day is not so very far off.

The bringing in of 800 sheep for breeding purposes to this district probably marks a new era in mixed farming. We see no reason why sheep should not be a profitable animal, and the scarcity of wool makes it a patriotic duty to raise as many as possible.

The Victory Loan will soon be placed before the public.

Mr. V. E. Graham has been placed as chairman for this district and is busy organizing and getting his committees.

The citizens of town should be planning this fall in improving their property next spring by planting trees and ornamental shrubs. One thing very noticeable in Wainwright is the apparent lack of my desire to beautify the grounds around private residences and the boulevards. A well kept front yard, and clean streets, with lots of trees, denotes a progressive people. Lay your plans now for next year.

POETS, ATTENTION

The Dominion Press News and Picture Committee of the Victory Loan 1918 organization announces a poem contest in connection with the coming campaign. Canadians with poetical talent are invited to submit offerings not exceeding 200 words, which will be judged largely on their effectiveness as publicity designed to persuade Canadians to buy Victory Bonds. A prize of a $50.00 bond of the new issue will be awarded for the best poem submitted. The next best 24 will be awarded special mention and $5.00 will be paid for those which the committee decide to use in the course of the campaign. Professor M. W. Wallace of the Toronto University and the editor of Victory Loan National Press News and Picture Service will be the judges.

The committee offers to supply information concerning the urgency of the situation necessitating the coming loan to all contestants who may apply to the committee's office, 18 King Street West, Toronto.

The contest closes on October 15th and awards will be announced a few days later.

AUSTRIA ACCEPTS WILSON'S PEACE PROGRAM AS BASIS

Following is the text of the statement by Austria-Hungary according to Wilson's fourteen-point peace program.

The Austria-Hungarian monarchy, which has made only defensive warfare and has never without several times to its desire to put an end to the bloodshed and conclude an honorable peace, has accepted the program of President Wilson to conclude immediately with him and his allies a general armistice on equal, just and in the air, and start without delay negotiations for peace.

These negotiations will be based on the fourteen points in President Wilson's message of January 8th and the four points of his speech of December 12, 1918, and those equally of September 12, 1918.

The fourteen proposals of President Wilson may be thus summarized from his address to Congress of January 8, 1918:

Days of private international understandings are gone and covenants of peace must be reached in the open. Freedom of the seas in peace or war. Removal of economic barriers among nations—associating themselves to maintain peace.

Guarantee of the reduction of armaments. Impartial adjustment of colonial claims based on popular rights.

Evacuation of and opportunity for the evacuation of Belgium.

Evacuation of French territory and fighting of the Alsace-Lorraine wrongs along lines of nationality.

Free opportunity for autonomous development of the peoples of Austria-Hungary.

Recognition of Romania, Serbia, and Montenegro, and guarantees for all the Balkan states.

Sovereignty for Turkey's portion of the Ottoman Empire and autonomy for other nationalities.

An independent Poland with access to the sea.

General association of nations for mutual guarantees of independent and territorial integrity to large and small states alike.

VERMILION AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL OPENS OCT. 29TH

Many have heard of the work that is being done at the schools of agriculture in Alberta. The three schools operating at Vermilion, Okla and Clareholm, respectively, opened their doors to the public in the fall of 1913. At each place the schools are located on the demonstration farms and they work in conjunction with the latter in uplifting agricultural pursuits.

The Vermilion school is at the disposal of the farmers residing in districts north of, and those served by the C. P. R. line running east from Wesslewin. Each of the other schools serve their allotted districts of the province.

In times like these when things are running at high pressure the value to be derived from taking a course in an agricultural school is exceptionally great. In the courses offered practice and theory are united to a degree that makes for efficiency in farming or housekeeping. Every progressive farmer or housekeeper is anxious to acquire or have their children acquire knowledge which will result in increased returns on a given amount of money or energy spent. The record of attendance at the Vermilion school of Agriculture since it started would indicate that people are alive to the advantages of the courses offered and that they are attending each year in greater numbers. In the first and second years of the school's operation the total enrolment in each case was fifty-five. During the third year's operation it was fifty-eight; in the fourth year it was seventy-two and the past year it was seventy-five.

A number of applications for the 1918-19 term have already come into the school office. There is still accommodation available and the school would very much appreciate hearing from any one who is interested in the course or the work the school is doing.

Courses Offered
There are two courses offered in the Vermilion school of Agriculture. The courses both cover five months each year for two years. One course is in agriculture for the farmer's sons and the other in domestic science for the farmer's daughters. The course opens on the 28th of October and continues for the five winter months. There are no tuition fees, the only expenses in connection with the course would be those incurred for board and room ($10.00 per week) and probably $10.00 for books. Each student on entering the school is required to deposit five dollars as tuition money to cover cost of anything they may break during the term. On leaving the school in the spring this money is returned minus deductions, if any.

Agricultural Course
In the agricultural course practical subjects are taken up, subjects such as judging, feeding and caring for live stock; handling of soils and crops; courses in carpentry, blacksmithing, weed seed identification and eradication, and elementary courses in English, mathematics, book-keeping, chemistry and physics constitute the major part of the curriculum.

In all the work taught in the schools of agriculture everything is made to bear on the practical side of farming. The school has an excellent equipment and it is best to the best advantage by a proficient staff of workers. At the end of the two years work a diploma in agriculture is presented to those obtaining the desired pass mark. Men successful in securing this certificate and who have gained a fairly high pass mark in all subjects, may take an advanced course in Agriculture covering three years degree work at the Alberta University, Edmonton.

The Domestic Science Course
The home makers course is also very practical. It is intended to make the women who take it good home makers. It includes some theory and a great deal of practice in sewing, cooking, home nursing, home administration, laundrying, household book-keeping, household sanitation, dairying, poultry, horticulture, field husbandry and thorough elementary courses in English, mathematics and the sciences as applicable to the home. To those satisfactorily completing the course a home makers' certificate will be presented. Provision for advanced study in Domestic science will be provided by the Alberta University, Edmonton, Alberta.

When prohibition struck the country it was a great thing. The imagination of the people was more than satisfied to have strong drink added to the war and all the other evils that now exist. Whether that could have back, its absence has been such a change for the better.
There is one thing that whiskey don't, helped to build, and that is the good hotel buildings all through the country. Cleaned of strong liquor they are splendid institutions for the comfort of the travelling public, and for the people in general. Plans are key, hotel keeping has been lifted from a business with shady aspects to an entirely legitimate occupation. To run urgent public service. The people engaged as it is, maintaining, more comfortable and more convenient. Vacant buildings, expensive to maintain, light and heat and keep up in furnishings,
and with none but legitimate, good
money to draw from, and with the excessive prices incidental to the war,
many hotel-keepers are finding it hard to keep going. It would be too bad if these splendid institutions in the towns and cities would have to close.

Until they are closed people will not realize how much they use and need them. How many people go there to through in the comfort of the hotel lounge, in the comfortable chairs, that
and with none but legitimate, good
money to draw from, and with the excessive prices incidental to the war,
many hotel-keepers are finding it hard
to keep going. It would be too bad if
these splendid institutions in the towns
and cities would have to close.

Now I am not a hotel-keeper, but I know a few people who find a hotel such a convenience, should, spend their money they have to spend right there. I will tell you what I saw one day. A woman with three children came in the carter in—oh, a toady, many miles from here. The youngest had a shawl like in each hand. It was at the age, scattering crumbs about, and played at the piano with the other two. The mother, who had been dropped the skin on the floor, the was barefooted, but the mother took the shawl off and put it on the wife.
The mother was just indignantly eating some plums and putting the pits in the flower pots in the window when the waitresses came in, in a hurry.
"Well," said he, "come on over to the kitchen and let's have our dinner." He they all cluttered out, the mother took a bag containing some baby's clothes. Morris came until she should return.

Now I do not begrudge John Chinquapaw his story, but he is a worthy, inoffensive citizen. He charges 30 cents a meal because he gives that much more service than the people who more service than that must pay for it in fairness. Why should people not get it extra 15 cents worth for nothing and then go to him? He expects you to eat and get out—his but made people who shared the hospitality of that house, must be more or less suspected, because of the vandalism of certain ones. Such things might be done in licensed days, the hotel-man, because of the traffic he had in, being booked in as an open game. But I repeat that the hotel business is now on a different plane.
All of our right minded people should take a pride and a pleasure in helping maintain the respected hotelier in his own town. The vote for prohibition was overwhelming. Let us show that it is possible to maintain hotels in their old style and only better, their keepers getting encouraging returns and without any help from Satan in the form of drink.

An Advertisement by Charles Dickens

CHARLES DICKENS is one of the world's great teachers. Here is what he has to say in one of his books:

"My other piece of advice, Corfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income $20, annual expenditure £10 10s—result, happiness.
Annual income £20, annual expenditure £20 0—result, misery. The blessing is in the balance, and with the God of Day goes down upon the driest neck, and—in short, you are forever doomed. As I am."

The saving of a part of one's income was always a good policy.

Prudent men and women have always maintained a margin of saving.

But to-day we must go farther in our efforts to save than ever before.

To-day it is a matter of the gravest importance that each Canadian seek ways and means to economize by cutting down expenditures for unnecessary things, saving the money he spends on things he could do without, so that when the Nation needs to borrow money he will be in a position to do his full duty.

There is war-shortening work waiting for every dollar that can be saved.

IF Charles Dickens were writing to Canadians to-day he would probably give us advice to this effect.

"My other piece of advice, Canadians, you know.
No matter what percentage of your annual income you have previously saved, your efforts to-day should be to save more. The advantage of so doing is twofold. By the saving of money, if you conserve the material and labor which must be devoted to the grim task before us you cultivate the precious habit of thrift; you gather more and more money to lend to the Nation for the production of the war to a quick and certain victory."

NORWEST ACCOUNTED FOR 115 GERMANS —IS LOCAL BOY

The following letter was received by Mrs. Louie, from Lance Corporal "P. Page, and tells of the daring exploits of "Norwest," a native born Alberta lad. Norwest was well known throughout the district here, and all will be proud to hear of his distinguished way he acquitted himself overseas:

France, Aug. 20, 1918

Dear Mrs. Louie:
 By the time you get this letter you will have heard that your son, whom we knew as Norwest, was killed yesterday.

I am writing this letter to offer you my sincere sympathy in your loss and to tell you something of his life and death out here.

Your son, I believe, had a record as a soldier that was unknown in the Canadian corps and possibly in the British army, and at the time of his death had a record of having shot one hundred and fifty Germans.

Personally I think he got more than his share, but he would never claim to have hit a German unless some one else had seen it too.

He seemed always quite fearless and would go anywhere if he thought he could inflict casualties on the enemy.

He won the Military Medal and a bar to it for exceptional gallantry.

During the recent fighting he was always well forward picking off the enemy. The way he met his death was like this. There was a small wood near our line that was held by the enemy and from which they were worrying us by sniping.

Norwest went out to try and stop them. Going down a ditch leading in that direction he saw some Germans in a house, a little way off. He was just going to get a shot at these when a German sniper in the wood shot him, killing him instantaneously.

He suffered no pain. We managed to get his body out and he was buried in one of the military cemeteries. Any efforts he had will be sent to you in due course from the record office also his medal.

I can assure you his death is a heavy loss to us and I think every one in the battalion feels it.

I only hope that his fine record and the value of his services to his country may in some degree help you to bear your loss.

Again assuring you of my deepest sympathy, believe me,

Believe me,
 Lance Corp. P. Page,
 50th Canadian Battalion.

AUTUMN CULTIVATION FOR CONTROL OF WEEDS

Experimental Farm Notes

The ploughing of the land in the fall is desirable as a part of the regular work of the farm since it enables the ground to be got into proper condition for sowing the seed in spring considerably earlier than would otherwise be the case. But it is perhaps of even greater importance as a means of keeping weeds in check. In the case of perennial weeds the mere turning up and exposing of the rootstocks to the action of the frost winter as a considerable check to the weeds in cases where they are not killed outright. Where it is desirable to collect and burn creeping rootstocks this can be more readily accomplished where the ground has been pulverized by the frost and snow of winter.

In the case of annual weeds there are two classes from the point of view of their life history. One group requires a resting period before the seeds will germinate and this holds good even if the conditions with regard to moisture and temperature are suitable. These normally germinate in the spring of the following year after they are shed, but in many species the germination can be delayed for several years if the seeds are buried to a considerable depth in the soil. This is true of such species as Wild Oats, and Wild Mustard. Each time the surface of the ground is disturbed some of these buried seeds will germinate, and if no other seeds are allowed to fall into the soil in the meantime, the ground will eventually become clear of them.

In another group of annual species known as winter annuals, the seeds germinate immediately after they are scattered and pass the winter in the form of a small seedling plant which survives the winter under the snow and resumes growth in the following spring. Belonging to this group are the following weeds: Chees, Purple Cockle, Night-flowering Catchfly, Stinkweed, Shepherd's Purse, Pale Flax, Fall Mustard, Wild Radish, Hare's Ear Mustard, Corn Gromwell, Stinkweed. It is in the case of these weeds that autumn cultivation is especially desirable as if they are turned under with the plow and covered sufficiently deeply, very few of them will be able to continue their growth after the snow melts.

REQUIREMENTS OF THE BRITISH STOCK MARKET

The British ministry of food states that so long as supplies for Transatlantic cargoes are so very limited as at present, it will be unable to accept undischarged beef carcasses for transportation to Great Britain or the allies. Beef of this class includes a considerably larger percentage of bone and waste than does the well-finished articles and at the same time is more difficult to handle and less easily preserved. For somewhat similar reasons the ministry states that it will pay the top price only for bacon which is cut from select hams weighing between 150 and 250 pounds, live weight. The beef carcasses, in order to be favorably considered, should weigh at least 600 pounds. It is of the greatest importance, therefore, that our farmers and feeders should make every effort to finish their stock before marketing. If any are in such a position that they find they cannot finish, it themselves, they should do their best to place it in the hands of those who can. The situation in Eastern Canada is unquestionably good so far as roughage is concerned, and we are not finishing marketing one of the best crops of grain that we have ever had out here, and while Western Canada has suffered somewhat from drought and frost, conditions have improved immensely since July last. I feel justified, therefore, in asking the farmers throughout this country to make special effort to market only finished stock within the weights indicated.

Production is exceedingly important but quality, condition and finish are even more essential if we are to ensure our products reaching the markets of Great Britain and our allies, as is evidenced by the statistics in the first paragraph. There is, however, another reason, and to our farmers—and in fact to all Canadians—an almost equally important reason why we should do our utmost to put out only the best quality and finish on the export market at the present time and in the immediate future. Practically all our bacon surplus and a very large portion of our surplus of beef, must find its outlet in Great Britain. If, therefore, we bring our place on the British market both now and in the future, it is apparent that we must maintain the good reputation we already have for a superior article of bacon and improve our present status as a beef-producing country, and since the very existence of our bacon industry and in no small measure the continued prosperity of our beef-producing interests, depend upon our standing in the British market, I make this appeal feeling convinced that the standard set this year may easily determine our reputation, and largely establish our commercial position in these times for not only the immediate but also the more distant future.

It seems to me, therefore, that I am not exaggerating when I say that our handling of this situation at the present time depends in no small degree the life of our bacon and beef trade, and I feel that I am not asking too much when I urge upon every individual farmer and feeder the importance of each one doing his utmost to ensure only finished animals going to the block.
